

In an unprecedented effort to intimidate his country's independent press, Ecuadorian President Rafael Correa has filed multi-million dollar lawsuits against journalists and newspapers in numerous libel cases. Every week, he publicly insults and threatens critical media professionals on live TV. His government's most recent move was the passing of one of the continent's most restrictive media laws.

STOP INTIMIDATING JOURNALISTS #FreeThePress

WAN  IFRA
World Association of Newspapers and News Publishers